Sir:-With reference to your enquiry as to the liability of British subjects to compulsory military service in the United States, I beg to furnish you with the following information.

1st. No claim is made by the United States government on any foreigner who has not declared his intentions to become a citizen of the United States, with the exceptions hereinafter mentioned.

2d. All residents of each congresssional district must comply with regulations prescribing the mode and , time of enrollment there existing. After they have done this, those who wish to claim exemption on the ground of their alienage should lose no time in furnishing such evidence of their claim to exemption as may be required by the United States authorities.

During the recent draft—for the militia, numerous cases have occurred where foreigners have been subjected ing their exemption at the proper time

The text was from Romans, II chapter, 14th verses "For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves.' The speaker said that natural religion is defective in that we accept wrong principles, and misapply correct ones. It is uncertain in that by it we cannot find out God, it leaves us in doubt about the future world, and it imperfeetly reveals the principles on which sin is to be treated. Natural religion and revealed religion, on comparing their ability to meet the wants of men, leave the argument wholly on the side of the Bible. Man naturally wants a God Nature cannot present a certain one, the bible does. Man wants a mediator. The bible only gives it. Man wants peace. No peace is promised but in the bible. Man wants happiness. The bible only can supply the conditions of happiness. Since then, the bible is such a blessing as we see it to be, let it be carried to all parts of the earth. In considering our want of a mediator the speaker was perhaps too theological for Seize the brain and stop its action and the mind will not run much alone. Touch the heart and the candle of life will go out. It i perhaps more than questionable whether our world of thought of purpose and of power can exist at all as thought and power without an organization; and so long as we stay here we may as well acknowledge our own flesh, and call ourselves body and spirit. There is danger in underrating the importance of the body. If one may burn his midnight lamp over Horace or Butler himself which interests others. the many may burn theirs over games and carousals. We must keep the body under but we may not despise and crush it.
